7: Loch Bheathrach, Canton of - Resub Branch Name & Resub Device

Argent, a sea-serpent ondoyant between two laruel wreaths vert and a base wavy Barry wavy vert and argent.

Sound most important.

Note: The group's previous submission, Loch Smythe, was returned by Laurel on the April 2009 LoAR (<http://heraldry.sca.org/loar/2009/04/09-04lar.html>). The decision noted that "The branch name is returned for lack of documentation that Loch Smythe follows a pattern of period Scottish place names. While the submitters showed a number of Scottish place names containing the element Loch, none of these examples followed the pattern Loch + <English or Scots occupational byname>. In all of the examples provided, either the etymology of the second element was unknown or undetermined, or it was Gaelic."

Loch - Black's Surnames of Scotland s.n. LOCHMILL - Schir David Lochmill or Lochmull, parson of Stronsay, 1507-13. (use of "Loch" in locative name with an occupational structure). Also on pp. 433-434 s.n. LOCH cites "Reginald of the Loch" dated 1214-33, David Loch dated 1570.

Johnston's "Place Names of Scotland" lists a variety of names dated to period with the <Loch> element in them, including Loch Broom dated to 1227 on page 51. Page number L (Roman numeral) shows examples of lochs or places named for animals, "Madadh, the wild dog or wolf, is commemorated in LOCHMADDY. The ordinary dog is cu, gen. coin, as in Loch Con." On page 147, find GOIN, L. "Loch of the geese or barnacle ducks." And on page 229, find NELL, Loch "Gaelic loch-nan-eala, 'loch of the swans.'" Paper copy was included.

online "Scots Words and Place-Names" lists dated place names of lochs. Blaklouch a1325; louch medow 1439; Louchside 1451; Burro Lowch 1561-62; North Loch 1569 <http://swap.nesc.gla.ac.uk/database/?view=table&search=loch> Paper copy was included.

Bheathrach - e-book "Guide to Gaelic origins of place names in Britain", p. 10, s.n. beithir <serpent, wild beast> - Sròn a' Bheathrach, roughly translated as "serpent's nose". <http://www.ordnancesurvey.co.uk/docs/ebooks/guide-to-gaelic-origins-of-place-names.pdf>. Paper copy was included. The same information as above can be found at: <http://www.ordnancesurvey.co.uk/resources/historical-map-resources/gaelic-a-b.html>

Petition for both name and device submissions was signed by officers and members of the populace is included with these submissions.

The group's previous name submission, Loch Smythe, was returned by Laurel on the April 2009 LoAR (<http://heraldry.sca.org/loar/2009/04/09-04lar.html>). Since no holding names can be formed for groups, the device was returned on the same LoAR.
